MESSAGE

I am pleased to learn that the annual publication of the National Crime Records Bureau "Crime in India 2012" was released in the first week of June 2013, well ahead of the target date 30th June, 2013. It is an important achievement for us and I take this opportunity to congratulate the Director General, NCRB and his team of officers for this achievement. Crime in India publication is an important report which provides extremely useful statistics on crime in the country.

NCRB has taken lot of initiatives to revise the format of "Crime in India" to include more number of crimes from IPC and other special laws to fulfil the requirements of various stake holders. Consultations with States and UTs have been completed at MHA level on this issue and the new format for collection of crime data will be circulated to all States and UTs shortly.

The trends of crime keep changing with the growing population and rapid development of towns and cities. Rise in crime in any place is a worrying factor for everyone and especially crime against women, children and weaker sections of the society is a great concern to all of us. Crime leaves deep scars in the society; therefore we need to study the causes, patterns and nature of crimes affecting the human body and property to find out the reasons for incidence of such crimes. Such a study will help us to identify remedial measures and policy interventions to contain such heinous crimes. Crime in India publication is a vital tool in the hands of such researchers, criminologists and officers of criminal justice system in the country as it provides ample statistical data to conduct such studies.

I convey my gratitude to all the States and UT Police Departments for supplying the crime data to NCRB within the time schedule. Without their active support and cooperation it would not have been possible for us to bring out the publication "Crime in India 2012" within a record time. I urge the heads of law enforcement agencies to keep up this good work and send the crime data of current calendar year by March 2014.

FOREWORD

I am privileged to release Crime in India 2012 edition. Officers and staff of NCRB and MHA have put in lot of efforts in collection and compilation of data for publishing this edition in record time. I take this opportunity to congratulate them for their efforts. For the first time in the history of NCRB this publication is released in the first week of June 2013, well ahead of our target. We could have released this publication in the month of May 2013 itself but owing to the delay caused by some of the States in sending the crime data to NCRB we could not release it by May 2013. Nevertheless for all of us this is an important achievement as we have bettered our own record set in 2011 by further reducing the time lag of "Crime in India" publication.

For any information to be useful or relevant to any stake holder such information has to be current and in this respect I hope the information of crime statistics of the country for the calendar year 2012 would be of great importance and relevance to all the stake holders.

NCRB has completed the process of revising the data collection proforma for future Crime in India publication to accommodate various requirements of stake holders. The future publication of Crime in India will contain more details on crimes against women, children, weaker sections of the society and senior citizens, cases under IT Act and other special Acts. Once the new format is approved, NCRB will develop web based data collection software for Crime in India publication.

Like previous years, this publication is also available in digital form and it can be freely downloaded by all the stakeholders by accessing our website <http://ncrb.gov.in>.

I sincerely acknowledge the cooperation extended by all States/UTs and thank all the officers and men of State Crime Records Bureau and Anti Corruption Bureau/Vigilance Departments in all the States and UTs for their untiring efforts in extending all support to NCRB bring out this publication in time.
